Fallen Stars

VIEW SOURCE

This fan-fiction article, Fallen Stars, was written by Witcher190 and Adalwulf of Aedirn. Please do not edit this fiction without the writers' permission.

The Fallen Stars are an intelligent race, born as a response to the fall of the world of Chinvat and the excess of demonic presence in it. As their name suggests, they are beings, born from the stars. Born usually through the desire of a conscious being after seeing a Shooting Star, taking on a form similar to that of the conscious being who made the wish. The extinct human survivors of the fall also speculated that they might somehow exist in other realities.

Origins

Fallen Stars lived in a different plane of existence above the different worlds (Probably, the ether plane), before falling to the material plane after a conscious being realizes its wish after seeing a shooting star. In their original aspect, they seem otherworldly, until they take a new form based on subconscious desires from the being that summoned them, but they behave strangely until they are taught. So, in spite of everything, they can be easily identified by their great ignorance of the material world. At least, in their first years of existence.

In The Continent

Their presence on The Continent, at least in a certified manner, is none. They exist in the form of legends and stories, mostly in the Far East and the Far South. Stories probably brought by humans with them when they came into the world.

Physiology

Its real appearance is unknown. It is said that they may have a standard shape, like dopplers, but it is not certain. Others say that their real appearance is that of literal stars.

Abilities

It is assumed that, in their primary form, they would have some control over ether, but this has never been proven. What it is know for sure, is that their abilities, when summoned, vary according to the need of who summoned them.

For example, it is known that according to the reports and stories that were arriving from Cervin's journey. The fallen star that accompanied him, Sayu, had healing abilities (which would make sense, for a witcher, especially in an environment as hostile as Chinvat outside the elven settlements) and Toah, a fallen star of which there are records made it at the beginning of the fall of humanity, found by explorers from the School of the Leptocyon was capable of generating the so-called "invisible death to its enemies" (also known in other parts of the multiverse as radiation).

Weaknesses

Although very powerful beings, the Fallen Stars possess weaknesses. More specifically, two, the first and most notorious, is the lack of faith in the being that summoned them in their wish, which would slowly weaken them until they disappear. The second are beings very good in the manipulation of the ether. So beings like the Grigori or Nefandi could eliminate them with little effort.

Although it is unknown whether this is true, it is most likely the case. It is also said that another weakness of the Fallen Stars is that although they are very long-lived, in their earthly form, they are mortal. So they can be wounded and killed if they fail to defend themselves.

Behaviors

TBA

Rumors and Legends

It is said that unicorns were not created by the Grigori, like a large number of races in the multiverse. But by the powers of a Fallen Star. After one of the ancestors of the unicorns wished to be able to go beyond the known.

Known Fallen Stars

- Sayu
- Toah

Notes

- Fallen Stars are inspired by the Starborn \(5e Race \), Starborn Homebrew Race, the movie and book Stardust , and Fallen Stars from this Reddit post, mostly.
- It has a bit of inspiration too, from some parts of the cosmic lore of Adventure Time.
